This is actually a portable forced-air furnace. It circulates warm air inside a room or building or does "spot" heating outside. It burns inexpensive kerosene or fuel oil so completely that it leaves no dangerous fumes, needs no vent, 110-115 volt current ignites the fuel and runs the blower. Safe, lightweight, effective. Costs only 12¢ per hour to run. If you need temporary heat, inside or out, here's your solution. Comes in 100,000, 150,000, and 400,000 BTU-per-hour capacities. the Snapshot Guild

This girl will be even more delighted with her gift camera as time goes on if she follows the ten tips listed below.

A Snap-Happy New Year to You!

Here they are—our ten picture-taking resolutions for 1957:

1. Keep your camera "snap-happy" with a semi-annual check-up and cleaning. Like your watch, it's a precision instrument that performs better when it's given a little extra care.
2. Always have a good supply of film and flash bulbs on hand, so you won't be caught short whenever a fine picture opportunity presents itself.
3. Keep your camera handy—and loaded—for shooting unplanned, unposed pictures wherever they happen on the home scene. These usually turn out to be the best shots of all!
4. Remember that flash is important to catch on-the-spot action indoors or after dark. Flash really puts your camera on a full-time working schedule!
5. Aim for simple pictures that tell their story clearly. Choose a single main point of interest and don't let a cluttered background vie with the subject for attention.
6. Make sure you have an interesting picture—one that shows your subject and some activity he's interested in. This will prevent self-conscious poses and glazed expressions that so often spoil the effect you wanted to capture in your picture.

7. Remember that there's "safety in numbers," so shoot a series of pictures rather than a single one. You'll find a series of shots will do a better job of telling the whole story just as it happened.

8. File your negatives in a box or drawer specially set aside for them. They deserve extra good care because they can't be replaced the way prints can. Once lost, they're gone forever!

9. Make the most of your good pictures. Use them enlarged and framed to brighten your walls; mount them in albums or "remembrance books"; send extra prints to friends and relatives; let them serve as personal greeting cards for holidays and other special occasions.

10. Enclose snapshots in your letters. There's no better way of keeping far-off family members and friends in close touch than by a friendly exchange of pictures throughout the year.

THE LEGISLATURE

or harvesting crops in September, and would give Maine congressional candidates an opportunity to be informed on national issues where they are not under the present system.

Ashland Highway
The State Highway Commission, fulfilling an order passed by the 1955 Legislature, has come up with a cost estimate of $4-million for a new road from Ashland to the Quebec border. Such a road would be used by an average of 100 vehicles a day, based on an origin and destination survey run by the Commission last July.

The Commission offered two choices of road surface. One would cost about $1.5-million; the other, heavier, would run to $3.2-million.

Score One for Newspapers
One recommendation of the Public Administration Service, which advised the state to stop the annual publication in Maine newspapers of the state's financial summary, has clashed head-on with the opinion of former State Auditor Fred M. Berry. In his final report, Berry said: "...this should not be discontinued. The annual cost ($5,000) is considered negligible in the light of the knowledge which the general public receives, but which they would not obtain in any other way." P.A.S. had argued that the books and accounts of the state controller are open to the public by law...so why print them in the newspapers?

Relief to Towns for Pauper Care
Ben Norman K. Ferguson (R-Hanover) has introduced a bill intended to relieve towns of excessive burden in caring for paupers. The measure provides that the state shall reimburse any municipality for 80 percent of the money spent for general pauper relief in excess of 5 per cent of the total tax levy.

Ferguson explains that the town would pay the entire bill up to 5 per cent of the total local tax but when it goes beyond that point, the state pays 80 percent of the bill. An emergency preamble in the bill, Ferguson said, may be removed. No payments would be made under this law until the next Legislature meets. Meantime, the towns would have to keep track of pauper payments in excess of 5 percent of town taxes and file a claim with the Department of Health and Welfare.

Look, Ma...No Bicycles!

Stunt riding on bikes is outlawed in a bill presented by Rep. Catherine I. Hendricks (D-Portland). It enacted the measure would provide that "no rider or a bicyclist shall remove both hands from the handle bars, or feet from the pedals, or practice acrobatics or fancy stunts on any street."

Introduce late in the third week were measures to: Create a Bangor Water District to finance a new source of supply...now the Penobscot River; appropriate $124,117 for a state police garage at Augusta; limit to three years disqualification for public aid for people who sell their property for less than its fair value; pay official court stenographers $7,000 instead.

Legislators' "Stop and Go" Plates

A rainbow formed in the House of Representatives in the week's closing minutes when the members discussed various scenic colors for their special license plates. One member, Rep. Frank M. Pierce (R-Bucksport) rocked the House with laughter when he endeavored to qualify as an authority on the subject because he was "completely colorblind." The House finally settled on bright green plates. The Senate earlier had decided on bright red. Senate President Haskett had to break this year's first tie vote to make the choice.
